Teacher’s Wish List

- Need a syllabus for a new course you’re teaching?
- Interested in getting grant money to support research on the scholarship and teaching of psychology?
- Wish you had a good YouTube video to demonstrate a principle in psychology?
- Want to read up on infusing Psychological Science into the curriculum?
Welcome to the Society for the Teaching of Psychology (STP)

Dear Teaching Colleague,

The Society for the Teaching of Psychology (STP) is an amazing organization, but I am certainly biased. I gently challenge you to explore the resources and opportunities available, which are chronicled on this web site. Check out each of the tabs across the top of the homepage and see what our talented members and leaders have created on behalf of psychology teachers for psychology students at all educational levels.

There are many member-only benefits, and if you are interested in joining STP, just click on the Membership tab (Hint: You do not need to be a member of APA to be a member of STP). Want to get involved in STP efforts? Click on the “Getting Involved” link here on our homepage.
