

BOOKS AND SHELVES

Mark Arctander

Stephanie Brooks

Gary Cannone

Bill Davenport

Anthony Elms

Nicholas Frank

Michelle Grabner and Brad Killam

Rashid Johnson

Deva Maitland and Robyn O'Neil

Michael Piazza

Karen Reimer

Joe Scanlan

Buzz Spector

A Reading List

by Buzz Spector

Several students and colleagues have asked me for a reading list, or rather, for several reading lists since each request carried with it some expectation of an individualized selection of texts. Why have I been asked? What is meant by such a request?

I refer to many books, articles, catalogs and letters in the course of my teaching, and have never encountered a student who was familiar with my every citation. This is neither evidence of a superlative pedagogy on my part nor (necessarily) of a deficiency in the reading experiences of my peers. I have not read any significant portion of texts available in the field of even my most specific intellectual interest. No one's read everything, for that matter, and other issues, of economies of collecting, of diverse literary taste, of local access to specific books, further complicates things. I will claim to be reasonably well read for the responsibilities of my profession, but it isn't "required readings" that comprise the kind of syllabus which is my subject here.

Reading means very much to me and I know that some of the enjoyment I take from the activity itself, which is distinct from mastery of given subject matter, comes through in my academic method. The request for a reading list arises more, I believe, from a certain engagement between persons than from recognitions of a thematic ignorance of facts. What is being solicited is a kind of map by which to follow the cognitive terrain covered by the other in the course of his/her reading. But since maps are a means of finding places, what is the place being sought by a reading list?

We share our reading experiences with others, in part, because we wish to know what that other thought or felt while reading passages which most moved us in the experience of a given volume. In asking for a list of books to read one is asking, in some way, to partake of the pleasures (intellectual and emotional) to be encountered through such reading. It is in how the evidence of these pleasures is already demonstrated in aptitudes of thought and feeling by the other, that one is motivated to make such a request.

Mark Arctander

Currently on the floor next to my bed is a short tower that consists of:

Free Exchange by Pierre Bourdieu and Hans Haacke

Continuous Project Altered Daily — The Writings of Robert Morris by Robert Morris

Leaving Town Alive — Confessions of an Art Warrior by John Frohnmayer

Naked by the Window — The Fatal Marriage of Carl Andre and Ana Mendieta by Robert Katz

The Lecturer's Tale by James Hynes

The Civilizing Process by Norbert Elias

Lullaby by Chuck Palahniuk

The Human Stain by Philip Roth

Stonehenge Decoded by Gerald S. Hawkins

Proficient Motorcycling — The Ultimate Guide to Riding Well by David L. Hough

Christian Boltanski by Lynn Gumpert

Imagists Poetry — An Anthology by Bob Blaisdell (editor)

Yertle the Turtle and Other Stories by Dr. Seuss

Basics of Investing — It's Just What You Need to Know by Marc Robinson

Fodor's, Exploring Italy

Silence — Lectures and Writings by John Cage
by Wesleyan University Press

Mark Arctander, World of Marcel Duchamp, 2002, books, oak, pigment, 12.5" x 14.5" x 9.75"

Stephanie Brooks, Compact Edition of the O.E.D., 2002, poplar, acrylic, 14" x 8.5" x 10"

Stephanie Brooks

Summer reading list:

*Eats, Shoots and Leaves: The Zero Tolerance
Approach to Punctuation* by Lynne Truss

Winter World: The Ingenuity of Animal Survival
by Bernd Heinrich

The Gift: Imagination and the Erotic Life of Property by Lewis Hyde

Lost in A Good Book by Jasper Fforde

A Song I Knew by Heart by Bret Lott

The Whole Story and Other Stories by Ali Smith

The Ethics of Memory by Avishai Margalit

The Philosophy of the Marquis de Sade
by Timo Airaksinen

Gary Cannone

My reading list:

Ozu's Anti-Cinema by Yoshishige Yoshida

The Art of Styling Sentences by Ann Longknife, K.D. Sullivan

D.W. Griffith and the Origins of American Narrative Film: The Early Years at Biograph by Tom Gunning

Graphic Organizers (Grades K-8) by Karen
D'Angelo Bromley

The Social Context of Nonverbal Behavior
by Pierre Philippot (editor)

Understanding Cinema: A Psychological Theory of Moving Imagery by Per Persson

Thinking is Child's Play by Evelyn Sharp

The Devil in the White City: Murder, Magic and Madness at the Fair that Changed America
by Erik Larson

*What Video Games Have to Teach Us About
Learning and Literacy* by James Paul Gee

*Money and the Modern Mind: George Simmel's
Philosophy of Money* by Gianfranco Poggi

Gary Cannone, 93% of Frank Lloyd Wright's Documented Private Library in My Apartment, 1994, photograph, 19" x 22"

Bill Davenport, Shelf of Books, 1999, acrylic on canvas, 14" x 18"

Bill Davenport

Here's a downstairs bookshelf, with comments:

The Private Life of Henry VIII, Nancy Brysson Morrison. "Very, very bad, not even juicy."

Siblings Without Rivalry, Adele Faber and Elaine Mazlish. "Good luck!"

Curious George Flies a Kite, Margret Rey (pictures by H.A. Rey). "I like the first two Curious George books written by H.A. Rey, where George smokes and vandalizes things. Margret was a prude."

Web of Life, John H. Storer. "Nice introduction to ecology."

The Brothers Karamazov, Fyodor Dostoevsky. "Still haven't gotten past the first hundred pages."

How to Make a Texas Will, Karen Ann Rolcik and Mark Warda. "I did it, and you can too."

Archaeology of Michigan, James E. Fitting. "Lots of arrowhead pictures. It's amazing how out of date a book on archaeology can get in 30 years."

Exploring Caves, Polly Longworth. "Junior high library fodder"

What Kinda Cactus Izzat?, Reg Manning. "A remarkable book. The only book of its kind I know of. A cartoon nature guide to the common cacti of the Southwest. Unique, a gem!"

The Success and Failure of Picasso, John Berger. "Haven't read it yet."

536 Puzzles and Curious Problems, Henry Ernest Dudeney. "I used to be annoyed by brain teasers, but now that I have children, I actually enjoy the way they give you something pointless and irrelevant to chew over for a while."

Texas Flags, by Robert Maberry Jr., Peter C. Marzio. "Pretty."

Deep Blue Goodbye, by John D. Macdonald. A vivid slice of the sleazy, depressing 1970s. "Very good."

All Color Book of Horses, by Elizabeth Johnson. "Pretty."

Upstairs, at my bedside, I have a stack of bedtime stories borrowed from my mother: I've already finished 11 novels by Nevil Shute, which have a creepy 1950s militarism, and the last four Harry Potters, which are clunky, but I'm getting used to it.

A summer reading list possibly reflecting a sense of optimism more than a sense of realism.

Anthony Elms

A summer reading list possibly reflecting a sense of optimism more than a sense of realism.

Finish Postmodern Fables by Jean-Francois Lyotard

Keep up with my subscription to
The Nation Noon, 2004

Voice Transmissions With the Deceased
by Friedrich Jürgenson

Jack Goldstein and the CalArts Mafia
by Richard Hertz

More Brilliant Than the Sun: Adventures in Sonic Fiction by Kodwo Eshun

My Life in the Nineties by Lyn Hejinian

The Planetarium by Nathalie Sarraute

The Rova Improvisations by Clark Coolidge

Work Ethic by Helen Molesworth

Falsa Prospettiva: Reflections on Claustrophobia, Paranoia and Conspiracy Theory by Michael Clegg and Martin Guttman

The Chirologic Tragedies and Grisly Notes and Tones by Catherine Sullivan

Anthony Elms, The Shoals of Distribution are Lurking to Wreck the Careless Mariner (detail), 2004, pen on paper, 22.75" x 14.75"

Nicholas Frank, Nicholas Frank Public Library (NFPL), 2002-04 (installation detail)

Nicholas Frank

Summer reading list:

The Candlemaker by Giordano Bruno. "I've already read this, but it's tops on my list of read-agains. A rollicking romp that puts Monty Python to shame for timidity, this book will make you think the 1600s were much more about bawdy gay sex euphemisms and the slandering of idiot politicians than you ever thought possible."

Independent People by Halldór Laxness. "Friend Jessica, researching before an Iceland trip, found this Nobel laureate author and passed along the recommendation. A book with so many deep lightning-blast sentences your eyes will turn inside out. As vivid a picture as you'll find of a time and place you never knew."

Coming to Slaughter by Michael Ondaatje. "I never saw or read The English Patient, OK? I came to Ondaatje through Elimination Dance, a brilliant long poem, and found my way to "The Collected Works of Billy the Kid". I really dig these proto-historical re-enfreshments, and though much more succinct than genre master Paul Metcalf, Ondaatje is a ringer."

The Burnt Orange Heresy by Charles Willeford. "A little light reading given to me by my friend Lyz, who promises my eyeballs will be turned inside out with disbelief at how perverse the human imagination can become. Will I survive with innocence intact? That Lyz painted the cover blazing red should answer that question."

The Complete Fairy Tales and Stories (Trans. by Erik Christian Haugaard, Hans Christian Anderson). "Friend Anne gifted this to me, unable to find the Bookforum-lauded, psychologically 'dark' new scholarly translations by Jeffrey and Diana Frank. Well, turns out this (unmentioned in the Bookforum review) 1977 edition features a cover endorsement by Psychology Today. Oh well, so much for scholarship. Anyway, at a glance it reads much truer to the original intent of the author, and I don't speak a stitch of Danish. Or scholarish."

Flesh Inferno: Atrocities of Torquemada and the Spanish Inquisition (The Blood History Series, 3) by Simon Whitechapel. "Alright, I probably won't read this whole book. A half-hour with it in a bookstore aisle was enough. But I list it here as a necessary counter to the recent inundation of pop culture with religious zealotry."

Michelle Grabner

Reading list:

Field Guides

Science is Fiction: The Films of Jean Painlevé

by Andy M. Bellows, Marina McDougall, Brigitte Berg (editors)

Being Good: A Short Introduction to Ethics

by Simon Blackburn

All the paperback mysteries my friend Annika has given me since February

Brad Killam

Book list:

One Market Under God: Extreme Capitalism, Market Populism, and the End of Economic Democracy, Frank, Thomas, Doubleday Press

Frank Lloyd Wright versus America: The 1930s,
Johnson, Donald Leslie, MIT Press

In Sam We Trust: The Untold Story of Sam Walton and How Wal-Mart is Devouring the World, Ortega, Bob, Random House

Michelle Grabner and Brad Killam,
Figure 2 (Sam Walton), 2004, books, paint can, 16" x 13" x 14"

Rashid Johnson, Contemporary Black Male Literature Starter Kit, 2003, shrink-wrapped books on pallet

Rashid Johnson

Reading list:

The White Boy Shuffle: A Novel by Paul Beatty

Black, White and Jewish: Autobiography of a Shifting Self by Rebecca Walker

The Great Gatsby by F. Scott Fitzgerald

Alex Haley's Queen: The Story of an American Family by Alex Haley

The Crisis of the Negro Intellectual by Harold Cruse

The Dead Lecturer: Poems by Imamu, LeRoi Jones

The Stranger by Albert Camus

Deva Maitland

Summer reading list (nonfiction):

Mesmerism: A Translation of the Original Medical and Scientific Writings of F.A. Mesmer by Franz Anton Mesmer, 1734-1815. Translated and compiled by George Bloch; with an introduction by E.R. Hilgard

From Mesmer to Freud: Magnetic Sleep and the Roots of Psychological Healing by Adam Crabtree

Visual Analogy: Consciousness as the Art of Connecting by Barbara Maria Stafford

The Artificial Kingdom: A Treasury of the Kitsch Experience by Celeste Olalquiaga

The Power of Display: A History of Exhibition Installations at the Museum of Modern Art by Mary Anne Staniszewski

Foul Perfection: Essays and Criticism by Mike Kelley, John C. Welchman (editor)

Robyn O'Neil

My list:

The Cry of the Owl by Patricia Highsmith

The Autobiography of Martin Luther King Jr. by Martin Luther King Jr., Clayborne Carson

Birds of Texas: A Field Guide

Eyewitness Handbooks 7: Dogs by David Alderton

Summer by Edith Wharton

Who's Who in the Bible by Ronald Brownrigg, Joan Comay

Skin Shows: Gothic Horror and the Technology of Monsters by Judith Halberstam

The Animal-Lover's Book of Bestly Murder by Patricia Highsmith

Straw Dogs: Thoughts on Humans and Other Animals by John Gray

Deva Maitland and Robyn O'Neil, A Garbage Dump and girls who will want to eat you up whole, 2002, written by Deva Maitland, pictures by Robyn O'Neil, edition of six books with original graphite drawings on cover, 6.5" x 6.5"

Michael Piazza, Illuminated (detail), 2004, electrical cord with books

Michael Piazza

Reelings ... Readings ... Re-readings (in no particular order)

Watt, Samuel Beckett . Grove Press: London 1959.

Death on the Installment Plan, Louis-Ferdinand Céline. New Directions: New York 1966.

The Foundation Pit, Andrey Platonov. Northwestern University: Evanston 1994.

Dreamworld and Catastrophe: The Passing of Mass Utopia in East and West., Susan Buck-Morss MIT Press: Cambridge 2002.

Dead Cities, Mike Davis. The New Press:
New York 2002.

The Pig and the Skyscraper: Chicago: A History of Our Future, Marco d'Eramo. Verso: New York 2002.

The Ballade of Ana Sage, Mary Jo Marchnight.
Somnambulist Press 1999.

Stars of the New Curfew, Ben Okri. Penguin:
New York 1988.

Silencing Political Dissent, Nancy Chang. Seven Stories Press: New York 2002.

9-11, Noam Chomsky. Seven Stories Press:
New York 2001.

Non-Places: Introduction to an Anthropology of Supermodernity, Marc Augé. Verso: New York 1995.

The Practice of Everyday Life, Michel de Certeau.
University of California Press: Berkeley 1988.

62: A Model Kit, Julio Cortázar. New Directions:
New York 1972.

The Wreck of the Whaleship Essex, Owen Chase, first mate. Harcourt Brace: New York 1965

Karen Reimer

OK, these books are the ones actually sitting in my house waiting to be read. Either because I bought them myself thinking they looked interesting or because they were given to me by friends to read. This isn't a recommended reading list. After all, I haven't read them and have no idea if they're good. Some of them have been in my house waiting for quite a long time. The greater proportion of non-fiction on this list is an indication of my tendency to read mostly fiction, i.e., fiction books don't sit around in my house waiting to be read.

One Market Under God by Thomas Frank

Gramophone, Film, Typewriter

by Friedrich Kittler

Sex, Art and the Dow Jones

by Jean-Charles Massera

The Shadow of the Sun by Ryszard Kapuscinski

Magical Urbanism by Mike Davis

All Tomorrow's Parties by William Gibson

Le Mariage by Diane Johnson

Embodied Utopias: Gender, Social Change and the Modern Metropolis, Eds. Amy Bingaman,

Lise Sanders and Rebecca Zorach

Running in the Family by Michael Ondaatje

The Unconsoled by Kazuo Ishiguro

Dust Bowl: The Southern Plains in the 1930s

by Donald Worster

Salt: A World History by Mark Kurlansky

Envisioning Information by Edward R. Tufte

Sorting Things Out: Classification and Its

Consequences by Geoffrey C. Bowker and Susan Leigh Star

The Man Without Qualities by Robert Musil

Karen Reimer, Awkwardness and Obscurity, 1999, embroidery, 7.875" x 5.25"

Joe Scanlan, DIY or HOW TO KILL YOURSELF ANYWHERE IN THE WORLD FOR UNDER $399, 2002 (installation detail), mixed media

Joe Scanlan

Reading list:

How It Is

Samuel Beckett

The Dirt: Confessions of the World's Most Notorious Rock Band (Mötley Crüe)

Tommy Lee, Vince Neil

Paco's Story

Larry Heinemann

The Final Unfettering

Jay Chung

Art and Labor

Eileen Boris

Orientalism

Edward Said

Empire

Michael Hardt and Antonio Negri

Portraits and Prayers

Gertrude Stein

Herzog

Saul Bellow

The American Way of Death

Jessica Mitford

Buzz Spector

Buzz Spector's plans for summer reading:

Almost through with:

Paul Berman, Terror and Liberalism "Thoughtful, chilling essay relating Islamic fundamentalism to a modern litany of totalitarian movements."

A few pages into so far:

Julian Barnes, Something to Declare "A favorite of mine since I read "Flaubert's Parrot." These are essays covering the history of his affection for things French."

Giving up on:

Peter Ackroyd, Milton in America "I'm too close to old to enjoy historicist fiction about old men in exile. Ackroyd's Chatterton was a much better novel."

Looking forward to:

The Hansjorg Mayer editions of Dieter Roth: Books + Multiples and Dieter Roth: Graphic Works. "Two very large volumes detailing aspects of Roth's extraordinary artistic production. His MoMA retrospective was breathtaking."

Ann Reynolds, Learning from New Jersey and Elsewhere "I attended a lecture on Robert Smithson by Reynolds at LACMA 10 years ago, and am looking forward to her critical study of one of my favorite artists."

The two volumes of the exhibition catalog to the 2004 Whitney Biennial.

Joel Brouwer's, Exactly What Happened "Brouwer gave me another book of his poems, Centuries, during my visit in April to Tuscaloosa, AL, where he teaches. I enjoyed them."

More fiction:

Umberto Eco, Baudolino, and Orhan Pamuk, The Black Book

More poetry:

Susan Howe, Kidnapped; Barry Schwabsky, Opera; and Susan Stewart, Columbarium

Buzz Spector, Conaway's Shakespeare, 2001, Polaroid, 31" x 23.5". From the collection of Roxanna and Matthew Goebel.

The Gahlberg Gallery/McAninch Arts Center would like to thank Roxanna and Matthew Goebel, Zolla/Lieberman Gallery and all the exhibiting artists in making this publication and exhibition possible.

Barbara Wiesen
Director and Curator
Gahlberg Gallery

Gahlberg Gallery
College of DuPage
425 Fawell Blvd.
Glen Ellyn, IL
(630) 942-2321
www.cod.edu/ArtsCntr.gallery.htm

This program is partially supported by a grant from the Illinois Arts Council, a state agency, and by The National Endowment for the Arts.

BOOKS AND SHELVES

Thursday, June 24, to Saturday, Aug. 21, 2004

